

BROOKLYN WORTHIES

SAMUEL B. DURYEA, born July 12, 1815, a descendant of Joost Durye who came to the New World in 1675, was a generous far-sighted resident of Brooklyn. He planned the Shore Drive from Bay Ridge to Fort Hamilton; and, at a cost of $30,000, gave 8 acres of land to be devoted to this purpose, securing for all time this beautiful spot for the use of the people.

As long as Brooklyn stands, the Shore Drive will be a scenic memorial to Samuel Duryea's foresight. So must ever remain the records of all land transfers. To give to all matters of land transfers the individual consideration that each transaction deserves, is the service that our officers render personally.

In prehistoric times, records and messages were inscribed on tablets of stone. Few men could decipher them and fewer could inscribe them intelligently and legibly.

The press has taken the place of the stone tablets and where formerly a message reached but few, your message today reaches millions, eager to buy your product or become acquainted with your service.

Don't let your advertisements be as cumbersome to read as the stone tablets of old, let them be compelling, attractive and above all, easy to read—let them be prepared by an agency of reputation, one with two generations of experience.

ACQUIT ANDRUS IN 3-MINUTE VERDICT

Farmer Jurors Exonerate Prosecutor of Charges of Negligence.

SARATOGA SHOWS JOY

Friends Parade Streets and Hold Demonstration at Home.

TIN HORNS ARE WARNED

Acquitted Official Serves Notice to Keep Away From the Springs.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

SARATOGA SPRING, N. Y., May 16.—Charles B. Andrus, District Attorney of Saratoga county, was found not guilty to-night of a charge he had been negligent in the suppressing of gambling houses here during 1919 and up to last July. It took the jury of eleven farmers and one mill hand, which had been listening to the testimony for the last week, just three minutes to return a verdict. There was one ballot, the vote for acquittal being unanimous.

The acquittal of Judge Andrus was the occasion for a celebration the like of which never has been seen in Saratoga. Impromptu parades were held, men and women went about tooting horns and the District Attorney was greeted on his return from Ballston Spa as a conquering hero.

Thousands gathered outside his home in Circular street while Mr. Andrus delivered a short address from the front porch thanking his fellow townsmen for the support they had given him, he said, in the fight against the "bracket ring."

He announced that any influx of "tin horn gamblers" next summer will meet with stern measures.

There were few dry eyes in the court house in Ballston Spa when the jury handed up the verdict to Judge Borst. The dignity of the court was completely forgotten for three minutes, during which time the room reverberated with cheers for "Our Charlie," Mr. Andrus, wife of the District Attorney, threw her arms around Judge Andrus and wept.

Gambling Did Exist.

Judge Borst in charging the jury said the evidence showed that gambling places were run more or less wide open in Saratoga, but whether Judge Andrus had knowledge of this condition or not, he said, was a matter for them to decide.

Continuing, Judge Borst said: "If the people do not seek to prevent vice, but rather to tolerate it, no one officer or man can do much against it, all of which must be considered here."

"Government is like a machine; no matter how perfect or great the machine might be it is useless unless there is power behind it. The people are the power. If the people do not stand behind the government the government can do little or nothing."

"If the police officers told the District Attorney 'there was no gambling here' he had the right to believe them, but if he heard further complaints it was within his duty and power to go beyond that and have a special investigation made. It must be shown beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant neglected to enforce the law with all the tools at his command."

One Witness for State.

F. G. Robinson, a United Press telegraph operator of Albany, who said he was a relative by marriage of Jules Formel, now serving a term in Dannemora for running a gambling house, was the first witness of the day and the last one for the State.

Questioned by Wyman S. Bascom, Special Attorney-General, Robinson said he never remembered of the defendant telling him that Formel had paid him $2,800 and owed him $4,000 for protection.

Van Wagoner, City Marshal; William B. Millman, former Commissioner of Public Safety; Mr. Bascom and Margaret Carey were the only witnesses called by Judge Lawrence B. McKelvey for counsel for Andrus.

Van Wagoner told about the seizure and disposal of an alleged crooked roulette wheel seized in the raid on Formel's place on July 25, 1919.

AURORA UPSET WIRES IN AMERICA AND EUROPE

Fires in New York and Sweden Attributed to 'Lights.'

Telephone repairmen were busy yesterday trying to repair the damage done by the aurora borealis, which began Friday night and continued intermittently until late yesterday afternoon. Telegraph and cable communications were interrupted by the "northern lights" as never before in their history. Hundreds and probably thousands of coils were burned out.

At least one fire was caused by the phenomena. This was in the Central New England Railroad station at Brewster, N. Y. The telephone operator was his instrument Saturday night when he was driven from the room by a flare of flame which enveloped the switchboard and ignited the building. Damage estimated at $6,000 was done.

LONDON, May 16.—Telegraph and telephone lines in the British Isles and throughout all northern Europe have been seriously interrupted by the great magnetic storm which virtually paralyzed wireless transmission. Cables between England and the United States were affected, and the transatlantic transmission was badly delayed.

PEGGY, DENYING ALL, ENTERS THREE PLEAS

Sues for Separation From Joyce on Ground of Alleged Cruelty.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

CHICAGO, May 16.—Peggy Hopkins Joyce has filed a cross bill against her husband, James Stanley Joyce, Chicago lumber man, asking the Superior Court to grant to her a decree of separate maintenance. In another document Mrs. Joyce answered her husband's suit for divorce.

Peggy asks for a decree of separate maintenance on the ground her husband's cruelty andunkenness made it impossible for her to live with him. In her answer she denies all her husband's charges that she made love to other men. She also declares her husband's conduct was legal and that at the time she became his wife she was divorced from her second husband, Philip Hopkins of Baltimore.

In her suit for separate maintenance Peggy declares her husband is worth not less than $100,000 and that the probable valuation of his estate is about $200,000. She says she has been unable to ascertain the exact amount of his income, but she has been informed it exceeds $1,000 a year. She asserts he told her his income tax for 1919 amounted to more than $1,000,000.

Peggy asks the court to grant to her immediately $10,000 to enable her to meet her current expenses and maintain the standard of living to which she was accustomed before she married Joyce.

She affirms Joyce's cruelty to her brought on such ill health that she is unable to engage in any work. She also asks the court to grant an injunction restraining her husband from disposing of his property and also from attempting to take her out of the country.

Peggy's third plea is that the court enjoin Joyce from "harassing and annoying her by the employment of detectives and spies."

District Attorney Attacks Akron Commutation.

The action of the Board of Parole in commuting the life sentence of Charles E. Akron, notorious vice keeper, to one of three and a half years and then setting him free—all of which was revealed Saturday when Akron was arraigned in the Gates avenue court, Brooklyn, on a charge of petty larceny—caused District Attorney Lewis to express the opinion yesterday that all boards of parole should be "wiped out." Akron was convicted and sentenced to life as a fourth offender December, 1916.

The man's appearance in court, where the charge against him was dismissed for lack of evidence, brought from Mr. Lewis the statement that he no longer attempts to make use of the "fourth offender clause" in the case of old and dangerous criminals, preferring to have them sent away as second offenders. As second offenders, they must remain in prison at least six and one-half years, and during that time the Board of Parole cannot intervene.

Paper Drawn Year After He Married His Nurse.

SALEM, Mass., May 16.—A bequest of $100,000 to his wife, against whom divorce proceedings were pending at the time of his death, is contained in the will of Paul Crocker, Pittsburgh, filed for probate here to-day. Crocker died at the Salem Hospital last Thursday.

The will provides that Mrs. Crocker shall receive the $100,000 in lieu of dower rights or other interest in the estate. The instrument was drawn in September, 1920, about a year after Crocker, who was an invalid, had married his nurse, Mary Curran.

After several minor bequests, the residue of the estate is to be divided among relatives.

On her five top speed tests, with all four propellers at work, the great ship averaged 21 knots, the highest clip being 21.73. She also developed a maximum horse power of 29,909, exceeding her contract specifications of 28,472.

$400,000 SHORTAGE SHUTS ARCOLA BANK

Father and Son Arrested After Examiner Reports on Illinois Institution.

LOSS TO BE MADE GOOD

Asserted President and Cashier Lent Money to Members of Their Own Family.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

ARCOLA, Ill., May 16.—M. T. Quirk, president, and his son, J. S. Quirk, cashier, were arrested to-day following the discovery of a shortage reported to be $400,000 in the Arcola State Bank. The police quoted J. S. Quirk as confessing to forgeries amounting to $34,000.

The institution was closed by a State bank examiner, and investigation showed that the affairs of the bank had become involved with the private affairs of the Quirks, and that it would be necessary to reorganize the bank before it could be opened for business.

Vice-President Lyons made this statement: "The Quirks allowed the firm of J. R. Ernst & Son, grain dealers at Arcola and Galva, to overdraw their account, $178,000. They also lent this firm $46,500 on bad notes."

The Quirks also lent money to members of their own family with no ample security. They have admitted the whole thing and have turned over all their property, which will reduce the loss by at least $100,000. We have also made arrangements to take over the property of Ernst & Son, which will further reduce the loss.

"Believe the money has been lost on the Board of Trade speculation. The bank has a surplus of $100,000, I, and members of my family, own half of the stock in the bank. We, with other stockholders, are making plans to reorganize so that there will not be a cent of loss to anybody except stockholders. Myself and family are willing to stand our one-half of the loss."

Stockholders of the bank met, and the almost unanimous opinion was that the bank would be reorganized. Other banks in the county came forward with offers to lend the institution the $400,000 necessary to meet the shortage.

Bank Examiner Whitlock reported to State Auditor Whitlock that the bank could be reopened if additional capital were forthcoming.

The elder Quirk is 68 years old and his son is 41.

NEW LAW TO BE TESTED BY PHOTO-ENGRAVERS

Will Says Controlling Act Is 'Clouded in Mystery.'

The legality of the Meyer-Martin bill, signed last week by Gov. Miller, which prevents price fixing by the photo-engravers' union, is to be tested in the courts, Matthew Will, president of the American Engraving and Etching Society, announced yesterday.

Declaring that the new law was "clouded in mystery and lacking in definiteness," Mr. Will said: "Pending judicial interpretation and decision, we shall hold true to the course and practices which have thus far charted our way until advised of the channels we may follow with safety and within the judicial interpretation of an interpretative and confusing legislative enactment."

Counsel has already been engaged by the union to fight the bill in the courts.

BOSTON, May 16.—Rear Admiral Samuel S. Robinson, commandant of the Samuel B. Robison, received orders to-day to proceed to San Domingo as Naval Governor. He will sail from Hampton Roads on the destroyer Henderson May 27.

UNION MINE CHIEF HERE IN CONFERENCE

Policies Anticipating Expiration of Contracts Will Be Outlined.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, will begin here to-day a series of conferences with district presidents and international board members of his organization. The object of the meetings, as explained by Thomas Kennedy of Hazelton, Pa., president of District No. 7, and chairman of the anthracite workers wage scale committee, will be to outline tentative policies in anticipation of the expiration of their contracts with operators March 31, 1922.

Mr. Lewis said the conferences will afford opportunity to talk over "administrative matters" and make a general survey of conditions in the anthracite industry. Asked if wages would be one of the subjects discussed, he said: "In the coal mining industry wages will remain at the present scale until the termination of wage contracts March 31, 1922. There will be no modification of the present rates. The organization will resist any attempt to abrogate the present wage scales."

"In both anthracite and bituminous fields these scales were arrived at by a governmental commission functioning under governmental authority. Any attempt to disturb the present scale would be disturbing the governmental award."
